OUTLINES.

As the result of a cloud burst in Southern Kentucky, the hamlet of Gradyville was swept away and 21 persons are missing, every house in the town of 150 inhabitants was washed away, at York, Ill., a tornado destroyed 25 or 30 houses and killed a number of people; at Minden, Tenn., four persons were killed and many houses demolished, while siminar reports come from other towns——President Roosevelt yesterday assisted the Missouri fraternity in laying the cornerstone of the new Masonic Temple at Washington, using the gavel and trowel used by President Washington in laying the corner stone of the capitol——Karl Hau, professor of Roman Law, in George Washington University, Washington, D. C., who is in prison in Germany charged with the murder of his mother in-law, was informed yesterday that his wife swam out into a lake in Switzerland and drowned herself; she left a long letter saying she could no longer bear her deep sorrow——At Boise, Idaho, yesterday W. D. Haywood's counsel subjected Harry Orchard to a grilling cross-examination but he stuck to his story that he has murdered 18 men, is an assassin, incendiary, thief, wife deserter, liar and traitor——Before leaving Washington last night for a speech making tour in the West Secretary Taft consulted for four hours with his friends as to his chances for the Presidential nomination; it is said confidently that Ohio will be for him——The decision of the Roosevelt administration not to institute criminals caused satisfaction in Wall Street yesterday——New York markets: Money on call nominal, time loans dull and slightly firmer; spot cotton steady 13.25 for middling; flour dull and about steady, wheat firm, No. 2 red 1.01 1-2 elevator; corn steady, No. 2, 64 1-2 elevator; oats steady, mixed 49 1-2 to 50; turpentine steady 60 to 60 1-2; rosin steady, strained common to good 4.60 to 4.75.

We have seen the picture of Senator Knox. It doesn't look like the picture of a President. It is not the picture of a President.

The Atlanta Constitution prints a poem entitled "Let Us Sing." Not for us. We'd rather live on good terms with our neighbors.

It is announced that every effort is being made to restore harmony among the Ohio Republicans. If it weren't for some class of men harmony wouldn't have to be restored.

A Washington dispatch says "the pure food and drink authorities are still trying to find out what is good whiskey." They might succeed by going down town and being social with the boys.

It is stated that Senator Platt, of New York, insists that he made Roosevelt President. Does he do so as a reproach to himself or to run the risk of being sent to the anteroom for initiation into the Ananias Club?

Raisuli, the Moroccan bandit, is making arrangements to visit the United States. He should stay over there and work that side. The business is already overdone on this side by a different method than that which Raisuli is up to.

A man holding a little Federal job is denied the privilege of dabbling in politics, but individuals occupying the White House and clutching Cabinet portfolios can go right on being pernicious in National politics and even insisting on having a finger in the political pie of different States.

North Carolina seems to be producing a good many inventive genuises. Now comes a Charlotte man, Mr. C. Harlan Wolfe, who has invented a steam shovel that by actual test has done the work of 30 men in making an excavation for a building in Charlotte.

It was Attorney General Philander Knox, now Senator Knox, who promised that in its trust-busting stunt, the Administration wasn't going to "run amuck." As soon as he saw that the Administration was showing signs of going down the pike to "run amuck," Knox resigned as Attorney General and let it run by itself.

The Greensboro Industrial News says: "Cannot we get some of our contemporaries to help us preach the doctrine of diversified crops in opposition to the one money crop, buy your-foodstuffs idea?" The Star has long been a preacher along that line. The cotton planters have had an object lesson in planting all cotton, and judging from the interview of the Hon. J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn, a few days ago, the strawberry growers have been forcibly reminded that it is not well to have all your eggs in one basket. Diversified agriculture as well as diversified industry, is what the country needs.

THE OTHERS NAMED

Board of Aldermen in Conference Nominate Three Members of Street Commission.

Library of Congress

TO RATIFY TUESDAY NIGHT

Plan Evolved By Which Newly Elected Board Will Continue the Work. To Borrow From Sinking Fund—Park Movement.

The Board of Aldermen in conference last night in the Mayor's office at the City Hall nominated for ratification at a regular meeting of the Board on Tuesday night its three members of the Wilmington Street Commission as follows: First ward, Mr. George Heyer; Second ward, Mr. William E. Worth; Third ward, Mr. Walter L. Parsley. It is not known whether or not these gentlemen will consent to serve, but it is presumed that they will. These with Captain Louis Belden, from the Fourth ward, and Mr. R. H. Brady, from the Fifth ward, named Friday night by the Board of Audit and Finance, will constitute the Commission in its entirety and it is presumed that they will met during the coming week and organize for beginning work immediately. It was announced by Mayor Springer, also at the conference last night, that a plan had been evolved by which the Commission could be placed in immediate possession of funds so that the street work may continue within the next week or two. The plan involves a loan from the Commissioner of the Sinking Fund and the arrangement is declared perfectly legal and economical.

At the conference of the Aldermen last night Mayor Springer, City Attorney Bellamy and all members of the Board were present except Mr. W. H. Yopp, from the Third ward, who has not yet returned from his reunion and Jamestown trip. The conference was private from the necessities of the case, though representatives of the press were extended the courtesies of the floor, provided nothing was published unless an agreement was reached. The privilege was not availed of by representatives of the papers, but after the conference the announcement of the nominations as given above was officially made. The appointees are all men of property and good business judgment and their election will no doubt give general satisfaction. The work they will have in hand will be very important, involving the expenditure of $400,000 on permanent improvements of the public thoroughfares, and they are men who will have the interest of the city always in mind. The act under which the bonds were voted and the Commission appointed provides that the work shall be done by contract and in this manner it is expected that the public improvements can be made with the least cost and upon a comprehensive plan.

A meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held Tuesday night at which the nominations made last night will be officially ratified. There will also be several other matters of interest taken up at this meeting, the call for which will probably be issued tomorrow.

The plan evolved for placing the new Commission in possession of funds with which to carry on the work until the sale of the bonds can be negotiated is included in a proposition to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen from Mr. H. C. McQueen, commissioner of the Sinking Fund. The commissioner of this city fund offers to take $12,000 or $15,000 of the street improvement bonds at the price the first series are sold at in order to place the Commission in possession of the needed funds to continue the work of repairing the streets and making improvements in the outlying parts of the city. The commissioner of the sinking fund will pay over to the city treasury the amount agreed upon, the city to give the commissioner its note with interest at five per cent. until the bonds are delivered to him. If the bonds aren ot sold, the note is to be provided for from the income of the city for the next fiscal year, which is regarded as a remote contingency. It is believed that with this solution of the problem a further reduction can be made in the tax rate provided the increase in taxable values from the new assessment is what the assessors believe it will be. This entire disposition of a vexed question, it is believed, will meet with the general approbation of the public.

Pythians to Grand Lodge.

A large delegation of Wilmington Pythians will leave tomorrow for Elizabeth City, N. C., where the Grand Lodge of the order will assemble on Tuesday morning. They are looking forward to the event with great pleasure. In the party will be Supreme Master of Exchequer T. D. Meares, Past Grand Chancellors John Haar and Wm. F. Robertson; State Deputy Grand Chancellor J. D. Nutt, Col. Walker Taylor, chairman of the Judiciary Committee; Messrs. Jas. D. Kelly, F. V. Huggins, G. F. Seitter and L. B. Rogers.

To Carolina Beach.

The steamer Wilmington will leave for the Beach this morning at 9:30 o'clock, and this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Fine Sacred Concert at the Beach this afternoon. **

FOR A NEW CUSTOM HOUSE

Collector Keith Says Revenues For Present Fiscal Year Will Show Phenomenal Increase—Presses the Claim.

Collector of Customs B. F. Keith is allowing no grass to grow under his feet in the matter of properly presenting the needs of better Custom House facilities at Wilmington. The report of the Customs service at Wilmington for the fiscal year ending the first of the coming month he says, will show a wonderful increase in revenues and these facts will be brought strongly to the attention of the government in asking for a sufficient appropriation. In this matter the Star has received the following communication from Mr. Keith:

Wilmington, N. C., June 7, 1907.

The Editor of the Star, Wilmington, N. C.

Dear Sir: In your report of the proceedings of the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday in reference to what Mr. Taylor said regarding the Custom House namely: "The difficulty of presenting a non-supporting proposition," that is, that it is costing the government more to maintain the office than the office is receiving. I corrected Mr. Taylor in his mistaken idea and showed him and the gentlemen present that we were not only self sustaining but that the revenues from this office would show that at present it only costs about one dollar out of every four to pay the expense of collection, and I endeavord to make it so plain that there could not have been any one present who did not understand my statement and I am at a loss to know why you did not quote my explanation.

You are certainly doing the city an injustice in allowing the impression to prevail that our port is not self sustaining and certainly injuring the project so much needed and desired by the business interest, that of a thirty foot channel to the sea. If our commerce does not entitle us to more adequate facilities in transacting the business and handling and storing the merchandise, then the outside world would say we do not need a deeper channel.

As for the business of this office, there is not a public spirited man who loves North Carolina, but what has a right to feel proud of the splendid business that is transacted through this port. When we compare our business with our neighbors and competitors, Charleston and Norfolk, we find at the close of the fiscal year 1906, Charleston's exports were little over $661,000.00 while our were $18,466,000.00 and Norfolk and Portsmouth combined were only $12,025,000.00, and this office has in sight enough business at the close of the fiscal year June 30, 1907 to make at least $20,000,000.00 exports and all business men know that it is what a nation or individual can sell that makes him better off and not what he has to buy. This demonstrates the reason that our country is so very prosperous at present, owing to the fact that we are selling more than we have to buy.

Our import duties so far this year have amounted to as much as the import duties of Charleston last year and to seperate Norfolk from Portsmouth, we probably have as much as either of them taken seperately had last year. All of these points have creditable, modern Custom Buildings, Charleston Custom House alone costing in the millions while our present house built about seventy years ago is entirely inadequate and not even safe and sanitary and the government Inspectors have condemned a portion of it and state that it is beyond repairs and the only remedy I see is for it to be torn down.

If so we can never get another unless it be through legislation making special appropriation and it is the general consent of those who travel and see other Custom Buildings, of our non-progressiveness in not having a building in keeping with the business and growth of the city and the dignity of the government.

I trust you will pardon this explanation, as I was gratified to know that it was about unanimous and the only reason that the matter was again brought up before the Chamber was to get them to endorse an appropriation of $500,000.00, or an adequate amount to erect a creditable building instead of $250,000.00 as formally recommended, and I believe every man of the large assembly that was present would be glad to see, as many of the government Inspectors and other government officials see, the great need of a new Custom Building for this port.

We are entitled to it and if we pull together as Senator Overman says, we can have it.

Very respectfully,

B. F. KEITH.

ROWLAND IN RALEIGH

Wake Physician Charged With Heinous Offence is Brought Back to Jail.

CONFIDENT OF ACQUITTAL

Mrs. Rowland Will Probably Return From Henderson Today—Governor and Party to Beaufort. Convict Escapes at Elrod.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., June 8.—Dr. David S. Rowland, who was acquitted yesterday evening at Henderson of the charge of poisoning his little son, David Austin Rowland, and was at once re-arrested on a warrant from Raleigh charging him with poisoning Engineer C. R. Strange, whose widow he married three weeks after the death of her former husband, was brought here this morning and committed to the Wake county jail to await trial.

When he was arrested here May 20 for the Vance county authorities for the murder of his son, he was handcuffed on the trip from Raleigh to Henderson. On the return trip today, however, he was perfectly free except for the presence of Constable Oscar S. Faulkner, of Vance county, who was in citizen's clothing. He was looking remarkably bright and cheerful, considering his three weeks imprisonment and the ordeal through which he had passed. He was greeted by a number of friends at the station. He said he was still adhering to his original policy of letting his lawyers do his talking so far as the charges against him are concerned. He did declare, however, that he has not the least bit of fear as to the result of the final hearing in the Strange case.

Dr. Rowland held a conference with his lawyers, W. L. Watson, J. N. Holding and Col. J. C. L. Harris in the sheriff's office, while the papers for his commitment to the Wake jail were being prepared. He was also allowed to go to his office with an officer in company with his lawyers to prepare the certificates of loss with a view to recovering the life insurance on his little son of whose murder he was acquitted yesterday. The amount is $900 in the Life Insurance Company of Virginia, and the Metropolitan Life. It seems that the time limit is almost up in which the certificates and proofs of death for the collection of the insurance can be presented. This required a couple of hours or longer during which he expressed his appreciation of the liberty he was enjoying. In the sheriff's office and in the vestibule of his own office, Dr. Rowland received the congratulations of quite a number of friends, especially among the young men of the city over the result of the trial at Henderson and the wish that he would clear himself of the charges here.

Counsel and others do not believe that the hearing will be on Monday in the Strange case, as it is not thought the chemist will be ready to report on the findings in the analysis of the stomach. The opinion is freely expressed, in view of the termination of the Henderson case, that the Strange case will be a "flash in the pan," as there is scant evidence to trace poison to Dr. Rowland, even if found in quantity sufficient to cause death.

Mrs. Rowland, who has been in Henderson to be near her husband, did not return with him, but will be here probably tomorrow or, certainly Monday, as her case as an accessory before the fact in the murder of her former husband, is set for hearing Monday.

John Jackson Hardee, a white man, 29 years old, serving a three-year term in the penitentiary for larceny from Columbus county, escaped from the convict camp at Elrod, Robeson county. He was sentenced last November.

Governor Glenn and his personal staff, together with the State officers, constituting the Council of State, left this morning for Beaufort to take part in the great celebration there today in honor of the coming of the trains of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad into that town over the splendid new bridge from Morehead, and in celebration of the beginning of the government work of deepening the harbor at Beaufort, leading to the great inland waterway scheme.

Neatest Appearing Policeman.

There is always a spirit of fellowship between the officers who serve the city and those who serve the county. This feeling yesterday inspired Deputy Sheriff A. T. Piver to offer quite a handsome prize with the several others that have been announced for the annual excursion of the police to Carolina Beach on June 27th. Deputy Piver will give a nice hat, any style, to be selected from the stock of Mr. R. F. Hamme, for the neatest appearing policeman on the excursion the 27th. Wilmington has some exceptionally good-looking officers and as they will be at "their best" on the annual excursion the committee will find it hard to decide to whom will fall the prize offered by Mr. Piver.

To Carolina Beach.

The steamer Wilmington will leave for the Beach this morning at 9:30 o'clock, and this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Fine Sacred Concert at the Beach this afternoon. **

WEEK AT WRIGHTSVILLE

Season is Now on at Popular Seashore Resort — Tarrymoore Opening. Sunday School Training Institute This Week—Notes.

Although the leading hotels and cottages have been open for several days and even longer in some instances, the first complete week of the season will be inaugurated today at Wrightsville Beach. The hotels, cottages and club houses are rapidly filling and every indication is for a very large crowd at North Carolina's chief ocean resort by the end of the week. Yesterday the tide of travel set toward the beach in a remrakable manner, and the cars which are now operated on the half hour schedule, handled large crowds. All trains after 1 o'clock were well filled and the sight of many bathers from Lumina to Tarrymoore gave a real Summertime appearance to the water front. Last night there was an unusually large crowd for the week-end dance at Lumina, and today the crowds promise to excel even the record of yesterday. The Consolidated Company has anticipated the rush and will run three-car trains afternoon and evening. There will be two concerts at Lumina, with the other attractions of the usual order. The Summer population of Wrightsville is rapidly growing, several of the new cottages recently erected by the development company being already occupied.

Reference was made yesterday to the splendid opening of the Seashore Hotel. The Hotel Tarrymoore has also opened with a brighter prospect than ever before for a successful season. Mr. Moore, the proprietor, has a corps of competent and obliging help, and the hotel is filling with guests. Both surf and still water bathing and the finest sailing and fishing is offered. Every modern convenience is provided and The Tarrymoore, which attained wide popularity, promises to be even more popular this season. Great improvements have been made between seasons, including a three-story extension on the north side containing 22 rooms and servant's quarters. The new capacity of the hotel is 175 rooms and all are nicely furnished and provided with every convenience.

Music for the Summer at the Tarrymoore will be furnished by a family of musicians composing an orchestra within itself. These have already arrived and are playing for the dances that are nightly a feature of the life at The Tarrymoore.

The third annual meeting of the Carolina International Training School for Sunday School Workers of all churches along the Atlantic seaboard, will meet at the beach on Friday of this week, continuing ten days, and all the hotels will profit by the large attendance that is expected for the occasion. The dean of the school is Prof. H. M. Hamill, of Nashville, Tenn., superintendent of training work of the Southern Methodist Church, and chairman of the International Department of Education. He will be assisted by Mrs. Hamill, primary specialist; Miss Hilda North, of Washington, D. C., superintendent of drawing; Mrs. Antionette Lamoreaux, of Chicago, lecturer on child study; President J. A. B. Scherer, of Newberry College, lecturer on Church History and Missions; Rev. L. F. Beatty, Marion, S. C., assistant Sunday School editor, with a great many local speakers. The railroads and hotels have given reduced rates. Mr. W. B. Cooper is business manager of the institute and can give all information.

NEW FIRM OF ARCHITECTS.

Messrs. Chas. McMillen and C. B. Cooper Form a Copartnership.

Messrs. Chas. McMillen and Carl B. Cooper, two of Wilmington's most prominent architects, have formed a copartnership for the practice of their profession, under the firm name of McMillen & Cooper. They will continue, of course, to have their home office in Wilmington, though both gentlemen have a wide clientele in all parts of the State. Mr. McMillen is the architect for the handsome new Grand Lodge Masonic Temple in Raleigh, and has designed some of the best and most substantial structures in this city. Although young, Mr. Cooper has rapidly gone to the front in his profession, and has perhaps as large a private business as there is in Wilmington. He has prepared the plans for a number of Wilmington's finest buildings, including the Bishop's residence in this city and quite a number of handsome business structures. The firm is bound to succeed and Wilmington is to be congratulated upon the formation of the new copartnership.

Fire at Cotton Mills.

At 11:25 o'clock yesterday morning the Fire Department was called to the yards of the Wilmington Cotton Mills, in the southern part of the city, where there was a considerable blaze in a pile of lightwood used as fuel at the mill from the plant of the Standard Turpentine Company adjoining. The origin of the fire is unknown. The wood burned firecely and several cords of it were destroyed, but the mill building was not endangered.

Their Infant Dead.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howard will sympathize with them deeply in the death of their infant, two years old, which occurred at the family residence on Seventh street, between Queen and Wooster, yesterday morning. The remains will be taken to Hampstead, Pender county, for interment this morning.

The second of the series of games in the City Baseball League yesterday afternoon at Hilton Park attracted the usual large number of spectators and two very good exhibitions of the sport were witnessed. The scores are large but the games were much better than the figures indicate. The Rattlers dropped a game and the Giants took one, taking the position of 500 each in the percentage column while the Y. M. C. A. cinched its hold upon the top for at least the beginning of the season. The teams bid fair to furnish a fine attraction for the Summer and it is agreeable to know that the receipts yesterday were considerably more than for the opening games. The first game yesterday was between the Monarchs and Giants, old-time adversaries, and the exhibition furnished by them was first-class.

The Y. M. C. A. took the Seventh Street Rattlers into camp by a score of 10 to 3, but the game was fairly good and the Rattlers did not despair of winning until the last. Duls pitched a good game and Wilkinson's work with the willow and at third base was a feature.

HAPPY WEEK SALE.

The Little Store as Usual Has Something New and Novel.

The smiling countenances that surround an attractive advertisement of Messrs. Platt & Haar in another column of today's Star give notice that there is something unusual about to take place at The Little Store, on North Front street. It is the inauguration of what the firm and employes choose to call the "Happy Week Sale," for it is the first week after the recent announcement by the proprietors of the half holidays on Friday afternoons and the empleyes and members of the firm desire to do something to show their appreciation of how the public looks at their manner of doing business.

The store has been most attractively placarded with announcement of special values, these cards carrying out the "Happy Week" idea most prettily, the work being that of Mr. G. Henry Haar, the junior member of the firm. Many pleasant surprises have been placed in store for visitors this week and the employes have entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion, determined to make this the greatest sale "ever" in the history of the rapid progress of the favorite establishment. The "Happy Week" will commence promptly at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and everybody is expected to be present at least some time during the week.

OUR DEEP WATER PROJECT.

Ever since the announcement was made that the building of the South and Western Railroad would make Wilmington its terminal and open up the opportunity for making this port a coaling station, The Star has advocated a movement by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce to launch a scheme for deeper water from the harbor to the sea. Every citizen in Wilmington should be gratified that our progressive Chamber has so earnestly taken hold of the matter, and no Wilmington man should leave a stone unturned or miss an opportunity to aid the movement in every possible way. The action already is attracting widespread attention, and yesterday's Charlotte Observer takes this editorial notice of it:

"The movement on Congress which Wilmington proposes to make for a deeper channel to the sea is due hearty support from the entire State. Wilmington's port statistics, showing the really high rank which she holds, despite her present limitations, point to great things in store if those limitations are removed."

The plan of the Chamber of Commerce is to advocate a scheme for a thirty-foot channel from Wilmington out to sea, in order to accommodate vessels of deep draught that will necessarily seek entrance to our port when the South and Western Railroad establishes its coaling station here. That will be done in a very short time, and "it is not a theory, but a condition," that has to be met by deeper water for transportation. Realizing the importance of the new coal road to Wilmington and all of North Carolina, the Chamber has correctly begun its movement for deeper water as a State project. The work has been undertaken with commendable enthusiasm, and a strong committee has been appointed to interest the cities and towns of North Carolina in the movement, as it is one in which all are concerned, from the point of having a deep water port to secure cheaper transportation. In furtherance of the plans, the Chamber of Commerce has asked the Board of Aldermen for $1,000 and the Board of County Commissioners has been requested to appropriate $500. There should be no hesitancy on the part of either board to comply with the request, for the deep water porject should command the official as well as the public support of our entire community. It will require every cent and more than is asked, for it is no small undertaking which the Chamber is to undertake for Wilmington. To our mind it is the most important work ever undertaken for our port, and the outcome involves such tremendous possibilities for our port as that every citizen of the city and State should see that the movement is sustained in the most enthusiastic and substantial manner, in order to win success.

The Star has remarked heretofore that the movement of the Chamber of Commerce on the line that deep water for this port is a State project is one of scope. As a matter of fact, it is even bigger than that. To some extent it is an inter-State project, for east Tennessee, southwestern Virginia and southeastern Kentucky are interested in it for the development of their coal fields. Back of the movement of our Chamber of Commerce, therefore, should be the collieries companies with their millions of dollars invested in coal properties. Back of it should be the Seaboard Air Line and the South and Western Railways, and every city and town in the State should co-operate in securing the success of the project. Not only are the States named concerned in deep water at Wilmington, but Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati and other western points are interested. The South and Western is not only going to be a coal road, but it will open direct commercial connections with the cities named. It will afford them a fine opportunity to get into new territory, and, therefore, The Star would suggest that our Chamber of Commerce should at least secure the co-operation of Nashville, Louisville and Cincinnati. In order to whoop up our deep water scheme it would be a good idea to have a deep water conference or convention in Wilmington and invite delegates, especially from every city directly interested.

SHORT COTTON CROP.

In New York on Friday cotton futures took a big jump and spot cotton closed steady at 13.25 for middling as a basis. The reason for it all is the distressing crop news from all quarters of the cotton belt. Owing to the enormous growth of the consumption of cotton in this country, in Europe, and in some Oriental countries, notably in Japan, within the past few years, a really good and reasonably large crop was necessary this year to meet the actual requirements. The indications, therefore, that the crop will be much under the needs of the world, are responsible for the increase in price. Even a big crop could probably have been sold at paying prices, and in some quarters it is feared that the disaster to this year's crop will not only be felt by the farmers directly but that it will check future consumption. It is suggested by the New Orleans Picayune that inability to secure required supplies will have a tendency to check development in the manufactured goods trade and to hamper the demand by an abnormal rise in prices.

The Picayune is one of the best cotton authorities in this country, and in an editorial that paper says of the outlook:

"Should the condition average be as bad as expected—that is, the lowest on record—the matter of acreage will cut very little figure in calculations, as it is well known that in a year where the spring has been late and rainy and the crop reaches June 1 badly in the grass, considerable acreage must be later abandoned owing to the inability of farmers to secure labor sufficient to cultivate the worst of the weedy fields.

"While the speculator will welcome anything that promises to put up prices—as the whole trend of speculation is always towards the bull side in spite of what the opponents of modern methods of trading say—the indicated prospect of a short crop is not the most encouraging outlook for the South as a whole. A short crop always means a spotted and unevenly distributed crop, so that even the higher prices do not compensate a large proportion for the loss of their crops. A short crop, moreover, means less labor, and consequently smaller earning capacity in the South and less surplus funds for the farmers to spend for supplies and luxuries. While overproduction is to be deprecated, a crop failure is even worse in its results because of its disturbing influence on trade and the creation of false or abnormal standards of value."

"THE WORLD OF TODAY."

"The World of Today" is an excellent magazine which does not come our way often but we have received the June number and we must say that it strikes us in all its features. It is published in Chicago and it is not only most liberally illustrated but its picture work is of a higher order than any of the magazines that come under our notice. The fact is there is art in every illustration in "The World of Today."

The magazine is varied in its matter, running distinct features that appeal to the reader. It discusses the leading events for the month, and in it is a comprehensive notice of the Haywood-Moyer-Petiborne trial now on in Boise, Idaho. Religion, the drama and other features of an extensive character identify it as a popular candidate for the reader who seeks entertainment and edification. The subscription price is $1.00 per annum and the price per copy 15 cents. Address "The World of Today," Chicago, or Eastern Office, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—According to one eminent specialist, the whole world is suffering from nervousness. Still, we have a notion that just now the railroad men have it a little worse than the rest of us.—Washington Post.

—"Mr. Cortelyou," says the Buffalo Times, "has been more kinds of a secretary than any man in the country." But we believe there is one kind he will never be, and that is the kind that talks in haste to repent at leisure.—Washington Post.

—Among the names suggested as candidates for president, are Overman, White, Johnson, Daniel, Swanson, Rayner, Carmack, Beckham, Smith and Francis. It is a singular fact that in all this long list, there is not, except Johnson, the name of a single Northern man. It seems to be generally conceded that the South is to name the next candidate of the party, and it is probably the most significant sign of the times that this inevitable event has excited no adverse criticism, either in the North or West. —Darlington (S. C.) News.

—Richmond is one of the few Southern cities that is as much "secesh" as ever. The flag of the Confederate States is openly displayed on every possible occasion. The city in its numerous handsome monuments has become the Gettysburg of the South. And yet there is nothing bitter among the people. They are simply revering a sentiment, and many of our Union veterans know by personal experience that no man receives a heartier welcome at the whilom capital of the Southern Confederacy than the Northerner who wears in the lapel of his coat the bronze button of the G. A. R. —Newburg (N. Y.) News (Rep.)

—Of late there has been a growing disposition to preserve the residences made historic by famous American occupants. Washington's old home has been visited by hundreds of thousands. There is a movement now on foot to buy Lincoln's birthplace. The cottage at Mt. McGregor where Grant died is public property. It was suggested at Canton Thursday that the McKinley residence there be purchased and preserved as a building which forever to Americans will have historic interest. This sort of thing might easily be carried too far, but the good sense of the people can be relied upon in most instances to prevent that. The homes of Washington, Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and indeed any honored President of the United States has an interest historically that those living in the locality should recognize and preserve.—Utica Press (Ind.)

THE LICORICE PLANT.

Where It Grows and How Its Black Juice Is Treated.

Black licorice is made from the juice of the licorice plant, mixed with starch to prevent it from melting in hot weather. The licorice plant grows for the most part on the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, which flow through immense treeless prairies of uncultivated land. The climate of these great plains is variable. Half the year it is mild and pleasant, but for three months it is very cold, and for three months in summer hot winds sweep across the country, raising the temperature to 104 degrees for weeks at a time.

The licorice plant is a shrub three feet high and grows without cultivation in situations where its roots can reach the water. The usual time of collecting is the winter, but roots are dug all the year around. At first the root is full of water and must be allowed to dry, a process which takes nearly a year. It is then cut into small pieces from six inches to a foot long. The good and sound pieces are kept, and the rotten ones are used for firewood.

As the valley of the Euphrates contained one of the earliest civilizations in the world, it is probable that licorice is about the oldest confection extant and that the taste, which pleases nearly all children today, was familiar to the little brown boys and girls of Babylon and Nineveh 3,000 years ago.

"What would be your first thought if you were to strike oil or in some other way become suddenly wealthy?"

"Well, I suppose, like all the rest of 'em, my first thought would be concernin' the shortest and quickest way to New York."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CHAPTER III.

THROUGHOUT the long summer day a gentle excitement had fluttered the hearts of those ladies, young or not so young, who had received invitations to the ball on board the Consternation that night. The last touches were given to creations on which had been spent skill, taste and money. Our three young women, being most tastefully and fashionably attired, were in high spirits, which state of feeling was exhibited according to the nature of each—Sabina rather stately in her exaltation, Dorothy quiet and demure, while Katherine, despite her mother's supplications, would not be kept quiet, but swung her graceful gown this way and that, practicing the slide of a waltz and quoting W. S. Gilbert, as was her custom. She glided over the floor in rhythm with her chant:

"When I first put this uniform on
I said as I looked in the glass,
'It's one to a million
That any civilian
My figure and form will surpass.'"

Meanwhile in a room downstairs that good natured veteran Captain Kempt was telling the latest stories to his future son-in-law, a young officer of the American navy, who awaited with dutiful impatience the advent of the serene Sabina. When at last the ladies came down, the party set out through the gathering darkness of this heavenly summer night for the private pier from which they were privileged, because of Captain Kempt's official standing, to voyage to the cruiser on the revenue cutter Whippoorwill, which was later on to convey the secretary of the navy and his entourage across the same intervening waters. Just before they reached the pier their steps were arrested by the boom of a cannon, followed instantly by the sudden apparition of the Consternation picked out in electric light, masts, funnel and hull all outlined by incandescent stars.

"How beautiful!" cried Sabina, whose young man stood beside her. "It is as if a gigantic rocket, all of one color, had burst and hung suspended there like the planets of heaven."

"It reminds me," whispered Katherine to Dorothy, "of an overgrown popcorn ball," at which remark the two girls were frivolous enough to laugh.

"Crash!" sounded a cannon from an American ship, and then the white squadron became visible in a blaze of lightning. And now all the yachts and other craft on the waters flaunted their lines of fire, and the whole bay was illuminated like a lake in fairyland.

"Now," said Captain Kempt, with a chuckle, "watch the Britisher. I think she's going to show us some color." And as he spoke there appeared, spreading from mast to mast, a huge sheet of blue, with four great stars which pointed the corners of a parallelogram, and between the stars shone a huge white anchor. Cheers rang out from the crew of the Consternation, and the band on board played "The Star Spangled Banner."

"That," said Captain Kempt in explanation, "is the flag of the United States secretary of the navy, who will be with us tonight. The visitors have kept very quiet about this bit of illumination, but our lads got on to the secret about a week ago, and I'll be very much disappointed if they don't give 'em tit for tat."

When the band on the Consternation ceased playing all lights went out on the American squadron, and then on the flagship appeared from mast to mast a device with the union jack in the corner, a great red cross dividing the flag into three white squares. As this illumination flashed out the American band struck up the British national anthem, and the outline lights appeared again.

"That," said the captain, "is the British man-o'-war's flag."

The Whippoorwill speedily whisked the party and others across the sparkling waters to the foot of the grand stairway which had been specially constructed to conduct the elect from the tide to the deck. It was more than double as broad as the ordinary gangway, was carpeted from top to bottom, and on every step stood a bluejacket, each as steady as if cast in bronze, the line forming, as one might say, a living handrail rising toward the dark sky.

Captain Kempt and his wife went first, followed by Sabina and her young man, with the two girls in their wake.

"Aren't those men splendid?" whispered Katherine to her friend. "I wish each held an old fashioned torch. I do love a sailor."

"So do I," said Dorothy, then checked herself and laughed a little.

"I guess we all do," sighed Katherine.

On deck the bluff captain of the Consternation in resplendent uniform stood beside Lady Angela Burford of the British embassy at Washington to receive the guests of the cruiser. Behind these two was grouped an assemblage of officers and very fashionably dressed women, chatting vivaciously with each other. As Dorothy looked at the princess-like Lady Angela it seemed as if she knew her; as if here were one who had stepped out of an English romance. Her tall, proudly held figure made the stoutish captain seem shorter than he actually was. The natural haughtiness of those classic features was somewhat modified by a pro tem smile. Captain Kempt looked back over his shoulder and said in a low voice:

"Now, young ladies, best foot forward. The Du Maurier woman is to receive the Gibson girls."

"I know I shall laugh and I fear I shall giggle," said K— ne, but she encountered a glance from her elder sister quite as haughty as any Lady Angela might have bestowed, and all thought of merriment fled for the moment. Thus the ordeal passed conventionally without Katherine either laughing or giggling.

Sabina and her young man faded away into the crowd. Captain Kempt was nodding to this one and that of his numerous acquaintances, and Katherine felt Dorothy shrink a little closer to her as a tall, unknown young man deftly threaded his way among the people, making directly for the captain, whom he seized by the hand in a grasp of the most cordial friendship.

"Captain Kempt, I am delighted to meet you again. My name is Drummond—Lieutenant Drummond—and I had the pleasure of being introduced to you at that dinner a week or two ago."

"The pleasure was mine, sir; the pleasure was mine," exclaimed the captain, with a cordiality equal to that with which he had been greeted. He had not at first the least recollection of the young man, but the captain was something of an amateur politician and possessed all a politician's expertness in facing the unknown and making the most of any situation in which he found himself.

"Oh, yes, lieutenant, I remember very well that excellent song you"—

"Isn't it a perfect night?" gasped the lieutenant. "I think we are to be congratulated on our weather."

He still clung to the captain's hand and shook it again so warmly that the captain said to himself:

"I must have made an impression on this young fellow," then aloud he replied jauntily:

"Oh, we always have good weather this time of year. You see, the United States government runs the weather. Didn't you know that? Yes, our weather bureau is considered the best in the world."

The lieutenant laughed heartily, although a hollow note intervened, for the young man had got to the end of his conversation, realized he could not shake hands for a third time, yet did not know what more to say. The suavity of the politician came to his rescue in just the form the lieutenant had hoped.

"Lieutenant Drummond, allow me to introduce my wife to you."

The lady bowed.

"And my daughter, Katherine, and Miss Amhurst, a friend of ours—Lieutenant Drummond of the Consternation."

"I wonder," said the lieutenant, as if the thought had just occurred to him, "if the young ladies would like to go to a point where they can have a comprehensive view of the decorations. I—I may not be the best guide, but I am rather well acquainted with the ship, you know."

"Don't ask me," said Captain Kempt. "Ask the girls. Everything I've had in life has come to me because I asked, and if I didn't get it the first time I asked again."

"Of course we want to see the decorations," cried Katherine, with enthusiasm, and so bowing to the captain and Mrs. Kempt, the lieutenant led the young women down the deck until he came to an elevated spot out of the way of all possible promenaders, on which had been placed in a somewhat secluded position, yet commanding a splendid view of the throng, a settee with just room for two that had been taken from some one's cabin. A bluejacket stood guard over it, but at a nod from the lieutenant he disappeared.

"Hello!" cried Katherine. "Reserved seats, eh? How different from a theater chair, where you are entitled to your place by holding a colored bit of cardboard! Here a man with a cutlass stands guard. It gives one a notion of the horrors of war, doesn't it, Dorothy?"

The lieutenant laughed quite as heartily as if he had not himself hoped to occupy the position now held by the sprightly Katherine. He was cudgeling his brain to solve the problem represented by the adage, "Two is company, three is none." The girls sat together on the settee and gazed out over the brilliantly lighted, animated throng. People were still pouring up the gangways, and the decks were rapidly becoming crowded with a many colored, ever shifting galaxy of humanity. The hum of conversation almost drowned the popular selections being played by the cruiser's excellent band. Suddenly one popular selection was cut in two. The sound

On Wednesday afternoon the Fifth Maryland Regiment of Infantry which arrived at the Jamestown Exposition on Tuesday enroute fro mthe reunion to Baltimore, tendered a reception to Mrs. Stonewall Jackson on the broad piazza of the Inside Inn. Mrs. Jackson graciously received the Marylanders and expressed herself as greatly pleased at the honor shown her.

Miss Elizabeth Divine Burtt, who has attained distinction in the musical world by her rare accomplishments, has returned to her home for much needed rest after a hard year's work in the musical department of the Baptist Female University in Raleigh. Her friends were pleased to welcome and rejoice with her over fresh laurels won at the recent music festivals of the State.

Among the attractive guests who will probably be visitors in the city to attend the Clark-Emerson nuptials on Wednesday will be Miss Florence Thomas, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Mamie Brown, Tarboro, N. C.; Miss Mary Graves, Chapel Hill,; Miss Anna Clark and Miss Irvin Bridgers, Scotland Neck; Miss Janie Peters, Portsmouth, Va.; Miss Margie Staton, Norfolk, Va, and Mr. Henry Clark, of Scotland Neck.

The Tarrymoore and Seashore hotels are open for the season and inquiries at both hostelries point to an unusually pleasant Summer. The facilities for the accommodation of guests this season are better than ever and with the seventeen new cottages erected between the two hotels there will be ample accommodations. Indications are that the fishing will be very fine and much pleasure is in store for all guests of the hotels.

The marriage of Miss Laura Clark and Mr. Horace Emerson will be celebrated on Wednesday. Because of a bereavement in the family last week the ceremony will be a very quiet one and the reception which was to have followed will not be held. The young couple are of Wilmington's most popular society coterie and their friends regret that sorrow has entered the family circle of the bride-elect, which has caused an entire change of arrangements.

Miss Julia Post is at home from the Peabody Conservatory of Music, where she has attained such a mark of distinction as to be requested to take part in the most important recitals of the season. Miss Post has a wonderful talent, which she is cultivating and broadening by close application, inspired by a love for music and a desire to excel in all that she undertakes. She has been welcomed by friends who wish her to take the much needed rest which hard work makes necessary at times.

The ordination to the priesthood of Mr. William J. Gordon will take place in St. James' Church, the last Sunday of this month. Mr. Gordon is a young Wilmingtonian who graduated with distinction from the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., last Wednesday. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, class of 1903, when he received the degree of B. A. A matter of sentiment brings Mr. Gordon to Wilmington to enter the ministry in the church in which his parents were married, and in which he was baptized ad confirmed. He has been called to the pastorate of the church in Williamston, N. C.

The Richmond papers of the past week printed under the heading, "Charming Southern Girls Who Attended the Reunion and Made Many Friends in Richmond," a very good picture of Miss Grace McMillan, of Fayetteville, who was sponsor for the North Carolina Division, U. S. of C. V. Our sponsor was by long odds the prettiest one of the group of seven pictures printed and the Sons of Veterans of Wilmington heartily approve of the charming young lady who acted for them and congratulate Capt. McKeithan on his good taste and excellent judgment.

The dances at Lumina have proven to be such very attractive and popular features that it has been found necessary to extend the balcony the full length of the ocean side of the building and along its entire south side, which will more than double the seating room for spectators and those who do not dance. In addition there are other noticeable improvements and conveniences which add much to the pleasures of the beach. The Club houses are open and when the lights are turned on along the board walk the beach will present the appearance of "The Good old Summer Time," which the cool nights have made some long for.

Colonial Dames' Day at the Jamestown Exposition was a decided success. The morning opened bright with sunshine, and the various functions arranged were carried out without a hitch. The exercises in the Auditorium were attended by probably 500 Dames and their friends. Brilliant addresses with musical features constituted the programme, followed by a luncheon at the Swiss Village, given by Mrs. William Ruffin Cox, tea at the home of Mrs. Barton Myers, in Norfolk, and a reception tendered by Mrs. Swanson, at the Virginia Building, at night. At the luncheon were several ladies from Wilmington, who, by a coincident, rather than a pre-arrangement, sat together at the table.

Last Saturday evening Miss Sadie Jones was hostess at Airlie of a beautiful dinner in compliment to the Airlie Dramatic Club. Covers were laid for twenty-five, and the evening was one of much pleasure to the dramatis personae and the friends invited to be with them. Those invited were, Miss Elliott Emerson, Miss Tallulah DeRosset, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Brooke G. Empie, Mr. Albert S. Williams, Mr. Thos. H. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Howard MacClintock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dick, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wallace Carmichael, Miss Hanna Pattison Bolles, Capt. J. Alvis Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, and Mr. Richard Bradley. It was a matter of regret that Mr. Bradley as well as some others invited were prevented from attending a function which would have added pleasure to their lives.

Roman House Heaters.

The methods used by the Romans for warming their houses were clever. In Rome itself artificial warmth may have been brought rarely into use, though the Italian winter requires fires at times, but when the Roman took up his abode abroad as the conqueror he certainly lived in chilly climates. In the country houses he built in England he had carefully devised heating arrangements, which are called hypocausts. These are flues running under the tessellated floors. Fires were lit outside of the house, and the hot air passed under the floors. To do this much required a knowledge of the builder's art, with the necessary precautions against fire. Remnants of these hypocausts are found today in England, built during the Roman occupation.

The Popular Song.

The definition of popularity as given by a salesman in a large music store is one that may be applied to other things besides songs.

"Is this a popular song?" asked a young woman, holding up a sheet of music brilliantly decorated in red and green.

"Well, no, miss," said the salesman, assuming a judicial air, "I can't say it is as yet. Of course lots of people are singing it, and everybody likes it, but nobody's got tired enough of it yet for it to be what you'd call a popular song, miss."

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head.

"What on earth are you doing that for, boy?" asked a senator who came by. "Are you going to fight a goat?"

"Naw, sah, I's doin' it cause it feels so good when I don't." — Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The First Bull.

Charon, the boatman of the Styx, was thought by many to be of Irish blood, for invariably as he was casting off from the hither shore he would call out to his cargo of souls:

"Now, then, look alive!"

This was doubtless as near an approach to an Irish bull as the then state of civilization permitted.—Puck.

Two Kinds of Foolhardiness.

Some of the men who laugh when a woman gets off a car backward would pull the muzzle of a loaded gun toward them when crawling through a fence.—Washington Post.

THE ENGLISH SYSTEM.

Not a Hundred Persons Affected by a Change of Administration.

"All told, the government of England consists of only forty-six persons, and the transfer of political control from one party to another directly affects only these forty-six persons and a few great functionaries of state whose duties are purely ornamental," says A. Maurice Low in Appleton's. "In all not 100 persons are concerned by a change of administration. Postmasters, government employees of every class, from messengers to ambassadors and colonial administrators, are not disturbed by the transfer of power. Clearly no political party in England can count upon patronage as a political asset.

"The principle on which the parliamentary system of England is founded is the rule of the majority, and the majority elects to surrender its power to one man—the premier. The power of the majority is so strictly recognized that the rules of the house of commons deprive the minority of all power to initiate or shape legislation. When a majority of the electorate of the kingdom has sanctioned a policy represented by a political party that party is given free hand to put its policy into operation. In all legislatures the power of the majority is the control which it exercises to tax the people and spend their money. See, then, how absolute is the power of the prime minister in his command of the treasury."

LETTERS BY MESSENGER.

A Postal Law of Which You May Not Have Knowledge.

The statement made in an uptown club one evening lately that the law prohibits carrying an unstamped letter past a postoffice and delivering it caused much argument. Inquiry was made at the postoffice, where an official said that the question had been asked frequently. "You may send a letter by messenger anywhere, past as many postoffices as you please," said the official, "but you have no right to send your mail that way regularly or at stated periods. This is prohibited by the postal laws and regulations. Sections 1136 and 1137 were enacted to prevent the establishment of private mail routes, because the postoffice department is recognized as having the absolute monopoly of the transportation of letters and 'packets' or bundles of letters by regular trips and at stated periods on all post routes. As to open letters and circulars, they may be delivered by rival concerns, but the people who make the delivery of circulars a business have no right to deliver unstamped closed letters. The law shuts out the milkmen and the tradesmen, who travel regularly along established post roads, who would otherwise become rivals to the United States postoffice for the purpose of accommodating their customers."—New York Tribune.

THE FIRST ZOO.

China, It Seems, Counts That Among Her Many Records.

The Chinese had the first zoo. Menageries are thought to owe their origin partly to the cult of sacred animals and partly to the ambition of rulers to possess specimens of rare and valuable creatures from foreign lands or savage beasts from their own. In the simplest forms zoological gardens were one of the earliest developments of culture and were familiar to the Chinese, Indians, Greeks, Romans and pre-Spanish Mexicans in ancient times. The oldest recorded menagerie is Chinese, dating from 1150 B. C. The den of lions kept by Darius, as described in the book of Daniel, is an example of one of those primitive menageries, while the cult of sacred white horses by the ancient Greeks and Romans and that of so called white elephants in Burma and Siam are instances of a second type. A live giraffe was received at the menagerie of Schonbrunn as early as 1828.

The Paris establishment is regarded as the earliest entitled to the designation "zoological gardens" in the modern sense of that term, which owes its origin, however, to the formation of the menagerie in the Regents' park. Of German establishments of this sort the one at Berlin is the earliest.

American zoos, notable among which is New York and Chicago, are among the completest in the world.—Exchange.

A Monument to Her Oath.

In the market place of Devizes, a town in Wiltshire, England, there stands a monument erected by public subscription as a warning to falsifiers and irreverent persons, to commemorate the tragic death of a woman who, according to the inscription on the stone, was stricken dead as a punishment for her blasphemy. The story, as told among the country folk, is that one of the village women, becoming involved in a dispute over money with a merchant in the Corn Exchange, called on the Almighty, with a fearful oath, to strike her dead if her statement was false. As she left the market place on her way home she fell dead upon the spot where the monument now stands, her perjured gains being afterward found in her tightly clinched hand.

A Few Twists.

Some Sabetha girls once made up a list of definitions of Kansas towns, the names of the towns to be guessed from the definitions. Here they are: Very bowlegged, Great Bend; a thin monastery, Abilene; the price of yeast, Leavenworth; why Mrs. Smith went, Smith Center; descendant of a sneeze, Atchison; a sire, a circle and a term in singing, Paola; what the American needs to secure a duke, Price; what some folks have to do for a living, Russell; my first, not wearing the second, got the third, Manhattan.—Kansas City Star.

Justice Bornemann's Court.

The cases in which William Parish, Robert McNeill and his brother, James McNeill, were charged with assaults by each other were investigated by Justice Bornemann yesterday and the "Judge" made an object lesson to all evil doers of one of them. The evidence given proved conclusively that Parish was the instigator of the whole disturbance and that James McNeill was only defending his brother against the assaults of Parish when the latter grabbed a stick and belabored him with it. The justice fined Parish $5.35 for the assaults and taxed him with the costs in all three cases. In default of payment of this he would have been sent to jail but his employer, Mr. W. W. Koch, became responsible for it and he was released.

Congratulations to Beaufort.

Many Excursions Booked and Many Others to Come—Attractions.

With two trips of the steamer Wilmington to Carolina Beach today at 9:30 A. M. and 2:30 P. M., the season at Carolina Beach will be formally inaugurated. Every day the coming week and possibly every night. Captain Harper has special excursions booked while many others are on the list for the following week. The present season promises no decrease in popularity of the river trips and the beach for everything possible has been done to make patrons enjoy themselves. A new concert piano from the Ludden & Bates Southern Music House has just been installed in the pavilion and the first of the sacred concerts will be given this afternoon upon the arrival of the steamer. Professor J. S. Atkins will play the lead violin and Mr. E. H. Munson will be at the piano. The mid-week dances, which were so popular last season will be inaugurated Wednesday night of this week and will be continued until cold weather. Professor Atkins' orchestra, which is said to be an exceptionally good one, has been engaged for these dances and they are patronized by among the best young people of the city.

Everything is in readiness for the season at the beach. The restaurant is under capable management and meals are served at nominal prices. The steamer Wilmington will be on a convenient schedule during the season and the public is invited to spend a day or longer at the beach any time.

THE LID DOWN TIGHT.

Policemen Given Special Instructions as to Sunday Sales.

Several arrests made by the police last Sabbath for selling on Sunday has given rise to the query, "Will the Mayor close the lid down tight on the Sabbath?" The matter has received some consideration by the police and they have asked a ruling as to their duties. Chief Williams yesterday issued written instructions to the day officers for this Sabbath as follows:

"The city ordinances allow the following articles to be sold on Sunday: Milk, ice, ice cream, cool drinks, medicines or any products of the ordinary soda fountain. Any person holding a restaurant license has the right to sell anything to eat in their places."

Death at Magnolia.

Friends in the city have learned with sorrow of the death of Mr. William Whaley, Jr., aged 32 years, which occurred at 6 o'clock Thursday morning at his home at Magnolia, N. C. He was a son of Mrs. Lucy Whaley and a nephew of Esquire W. McD. Evans, of this city. He had been ill with dropsy for two and a half years and while his death was not unexpected, it came as a sad realization to the family and friends. The remains were interred at Magnolia Friday.

Monday, Monday, a big bargain day at Geo. O. Gaylord's. Everybody invited. 1,000 sheets of new music, 10c sheet. **

OLD MASONBORO AND FEDERAL POINT ROAD.

A wise road for Masonboro and Federal Point townships has two objects in view: First, a road for military uses; second, a public highway for the people. Fortunately for the townships the road for one is the road for the other. The old Masonboro road and the old Federal Point road are the two right roads to improve. They were built by the fathers several hundred years ago, when they couldn't afford to live selfishly, but had to live in each other's arms for the protection of both property and person. They needed public highways built to the very best advantage and convenience. They searched for the best place and found it, and if we depart from their example we depart from the right way. It is about six miles from the river to the Sound at the city limits. About five miles across at the five mile post at Owen Martindale's place, on Barnum's creek. Four miles across at the seven miles post at H. S. Horne's place. At the eleven mile post in Federal Point township it is three miles across. The old Federal Point road starts from the city at ninth street and runs down to the seven mile post to about two miles from the Sound and puts a road within two miles or less of everybody's house in Masonboro township, south of Pervine's creek. In Federal Point township the distance is less.

The old Masonboro road branches off from the Federal Point road at 1-4 mile from Jumping Run, and runs down centrally between Hewlett's creek and Pervine's creek and hits Masonboro Sound in the center between the two creeks, and puts a road to within one mile or less of everyone's house on Masonboro Sound between Hewlett's creek and Pervine's creek. This road is about one and one-half miles nearer the city than the toll house road from this section.

Traveling the present turnpike means three miles useless travel every round trip the people living south of Hewlett's creek make to the city. There are about thirty-five or forty houses in this section, and they make between two and three hundred trips apiece each year to the city. So you can readily see the large number of useless miles traveled each year by using the present toll house road. Another reason why the toll house road should not be extended is this, it takes Masonboro township's road which she needs very much and puts it in Harnett township, where it is not needed at all. The portion that gets into Masonboro township barely skirts it and inconveniences everybody in that township. Another reason why the toll house road should not be built is because it will necessitate the building of a costly bridge across Hewlett's creek, at a place where the county doesn't need it, either in times of peace or times of war. Another reason why the toll house road should not be built is because it was only made to take advantage of the turnpike. No man in Masonboro township would have signed the petition for the toll house road in preference of the old Masonboro rad.

I say Masonboro township needs the old Masonboro road about one mile from the old Federal Point road. It was between the southern side of McRae Co.'s savannah and the northern side of Blye's savannah. Both are large bodies of good land and could be converted into fine fields and pastures with good facilities for conveying their produce to market. When it gets down as far as there Brunswick road there are large tracts of good truck land to the savannah that drains into Hewlett's creek, through Beasley's mill run.

There is also a large body of good land between Pervine's creek and Beasley's mill pond. All of this is convenient to the old Masonboro road. This road gives the best service possible to all and is an impartial road and at the same time does away with the expense of building a bridge, which is a big item to be considered.

The bridge over Pervine's creek connects Masonboro and Myrtle Grove sounds together and would encourage the sale of land to the people for Summer resorts and increase the valuation and taxes, and is needed in the time of war for military purposes. The Hewlett's creek doesn't connect anything together, but a few families who don't pay enough taxes to put a good coat of paint on the bridge once in five or ten years, and is not needed for military purposes at all. So much for roads for Masonboro and Federal Point townships.

What the county needs is a wise system of roads that will give the city all the protection and the army all the advantage needful. We have the Castle Haynes road coming out of the heart of the county and entering the city at ninth street. The old Federal Point road running from the city at the southern end of Ninth street, making a straight march through the centre of the county from the river to the sound. Right where a wise general would march the main body of his troops.

If he should have fighting on the way he could run wings out to the river and sound and prevent the enemy from passing him on either side. If he had to retreat from the Fort he would march part of his troops on the sound road and part on the river road, with the main body in the centre, then he would have the advantage of sending help to both sides. When the troops on the sound side marched across Pervine's creek bridge, the troops would march out by Mr. Beasley's. One division of them across by Lewis Davis's and on across Turner's mill creek bridge, the north side of Turner's creek, and one division would march up the old Masonboro road to the Watson crossing. While the main body marched up the center to the four mile battery and form a line across from the head of Hewlett's creek on the north side of Turner's mill swamp, Watson's branch across to Barnum's creek. With this line of battle the general would say "away with your Hewlett's creek bridge, I have no use for it," but he would need the bridge over Beasley's mill run and the old Masonboro road. This would be a wise system of roads, that would serve all the people and at the same time give our army the best advantage there is to be had. There is nothing a wise general covets so much as to have the advantages of his enemy.

Why should our wise County Commissioners lay their heads on the lap of Delilah, the spirit of selfishness, and let her get the advantage of Samson, our army, and cut off his hair, his advantages, and make him like other men? Give the army the advantage, and it will slay the enemy, or as Samson puts it "Heaps upon heaps with the jawbone of an ass have slain a thousand men. It is easy to gain the victory if we have the advantage on our side. Let us build our public highways to the best advantage.

Terror Blanches Hair.

It has been repeatedly affirmed that Queen Marie Antoinette's auburn hair turned white in the days of the reign of terror, says the Caledonian, and an English surgeon named Parry states that just after the Indian mutiny he actually saw the jet black hair of a rebel Sepoy, who was under examination and feared a dreadful death, turn white in the course of half an hour. In the time of the commune in Paris the dark hair of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild was blanched in a few hours.

Holding Him Off.

West Indian Negroes.

The West Indian negro is a born poacher. He catches the quail by the cruel expedient of strewing finely powdered cayenne or bird pepper in the little dust pits where the birds "wash." The burning powder gets into the eyes of the birds, which, confused and helpless, are then easily caught. When he wants a wholesale supply of fish, he explodes a piece of dynamite, which was probably intended for the making of new government roads, over a hole in a mountain stream, and the fish are killed by the concussion. But his favorite resource is the bark of the dogwood tree. This he drops into a river hole, and the mullet, intoxicated, comes to the surface of the water. This singular property of the dogwood has caused it to be employed as a narcotic.—Pearson's.

Noted the Symptom.

A little girl went for the first time to church with her mother. All went well during the service, but the child grew uneasy during the sermon, which was a long one. The mother tried in every way to keep the little girl quiet, but in vain. Finally the child observed that the preacher had a pompous way of inflating his chest and lungs at a new paragraph or head. Just as the mother was assuring the child that the preacher would soon stop, he did—for another start—and the tired child burst out on her mother's assurance, "No, he won't; he's swelling up again."—Woman's National Daily.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—High Point, June 7: Carl Maynard, of this place has been arrested in Lexington for an alleged criminal assault upon a white girl there, so a telegram here announces.

—Washington, June 7: Another new enterprise for this city will be a cement factory, which will be erected in the near future. The promoters of the new enterprise are Messrs. W. E. Jones, president of the Washington Investment Company, and George T. Hardy, proprietor of the Pamlico Iron Works, also of this city. This factory will manufacture concrete blocks and other artificial stone for building purposes.

—The State Cotton Manufacturers Association will meet in this city June 20th in annual session, and plans are now being made for giving the visitors to the city a good time while they are here. The meeting will be held in the assembly room of the Benbow Hotel and will be called to order by President W. L. Wyrick. This will be the first annual meeting of the association, and it is expected that about 200 will attend.

—Raleigh, June 7: Views seem to be varied as to the reduced railway rate which is to go into effect July 1. It seems it will be effective for only one road of importance, this being the Seaboard Air Line, and there a test, to see whether there is a loss or a gain of money, as the State claims there will be a gain in travel under a reduced rate, while the railway people anticipate no special gain and a net loss in passenger receipts.

—Statesville, June 7: Owing to the unusually cool weather hail that fell in Statesville Saturday could be found in abundance as late as Wednesday and yesterday. At points in south Statesville the hail drifted in large piles in the hollows and low places and the people in that neighborhood are using it for making ice cream and in their ice boxes. At a number of places bushels of the stones have been gathered into vessels and used for these purposes.

—Hgih Point, June 7: Charles Hayworth, night watchman at the Myrtle Furniture Company, fell into a vat of boiling water last night, from which he died in awful agony this morning. Hayworth was making his rounds on the outside of the building, where the vats are located for veneering purposes, when he stumbled into what proved to be his death trap. He was rescued by the day fireman, who happened to be close by. Hayworth was 35 years old and leaves a wife and child.

—Raleigh, June 7: Today Green Hill, colored, 49 years old, met death in a terrible way. For eight years he had been a lineman of the Electric Light Company, and was straightening a wire. He threw an arm over another wire, from which the insulation had been worn off, this wire carrying a heavy current. It set his clothing on fire, nearly severed his left arm and burned him in other ways. Presently he fell to the ground, some 20 feet below. A doctor was with him in a moment, but says Hill breathed only four times. His employer spoke of the man as being in every way faithful.

—Monroe, June 7: The special term of court for Union county ordered by Governor Glenn to begin on July 8th has been changed to July 15th. Judge Peebles will preside and the principal case to come before him is the Anson county lynching case. It will be remembered that when this case came before Judge Shaw last July, counsel for the defense demurred to the indictment, on the ground that the trial of the case had been improperly sent over to this county, and that the court had no jurisdiction. Judge Shaw sustained the demurrer, and the solicitor for the State appealed to the Supreme Court, which overruled Judge Shaw, and the case returns.

—Charlotte Observer: The Acme Plumbing Company has just completed at Norcross, Ga., its contract for installing the plumbing for the $25,000 residence of Mr. Buchanon, vice president of the Whitney Reduction works, and has entered in with the T. A. Gillespie Company at the same point. From the number of important jobs that Charlotte plumbers have been getting at Raleigh, Fayetteville, Wilmington, Oxford and other places in the State and now beneath the very shadow of Atlanta's skyscrapers, it would appear that their reputation as reliable firms must have extended abroad, and this fact will be cause for pride and gratification to Charlotte people.

—Raleigh, June 7: Commissioner of Immigration Bruner says he will appoint agents in Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota to induce farmers of small means not able to buy the expensive land there to come here. He will publish pamphlets in English, German, Swedish and Italian for circulation in Europe and in Northwestern States, this giving all information homeseekers desire. He will, while abroad appoint agents in England, Scotland, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Denmark and possibly in Italy, though as to the latter country he is not decided. The Board of Agriculture as the State Immigration Board has given him very full powers. The committee on immigration of the Agricultural Department had a session last night and another this morning and gave large discretion to the secretary, T. K. Bruner, who is the acting Commissioner of Immigration. Later in the year Mr. Bruner will go to Europe, and particularly to Scotland, England and Germany, and to some of the Scandinavian countries in the interest of this movement, which now promises so much and in which the people of North Carolina are beginning to feel a deep interest.

—No battle-scarred flag at the Richmond reunion could have been more a reminder of a generation that is rapidly passing away than the appearance of several old-time negroes in the parade. The marching side by side of former master and former slave, evidenced the tender feeling that still exists for the faithful negro in the South. The old-time darkey remains the object of gentlest care and admiration.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Greensboro Keeley Institute!

The Only one in North Carolina

Note of Warning

To The Public:

The Keeley Cure has now been in successful operation for 28 consecutive years and the merits and reputation of the Dr. Leslie E. Keeley Remedies have been throughly established. Because of this fact, many imitators are seeking to turn this knowledge to their own advantage by falsely claiming that they are able to sell and administer our remedies and treatment. It should be borne in mind that the Keeley Remedies are only to be obtained at establishments known by the uniform name of The Keeley Institute. There is one or more of these establishments in nearly every State in the Union, besides several in foreign countries. THERE IS ONLY ONE KEELEY INSTITUTE IN THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, AND THAT IS LOCATED AT GREENSBORO. At all Keeley Institutes the remedies used are procured from our laboratory, and in all cases they are administered by physicians who have been especially instructed by us. It follows, therefore, that all other establishments claiming to be able to sell our remedies and administer our treatment are obtaining money under false pretenses and will be dealt with accordingly. The public is warned that under no circumstances can Keeley remedies or treatment be obtained except at authorized Keeley Institutes. These imitators sometimes adopt similar names to those by which our remedies are known, but if patients will take pains to see that they are in an authorized Keeley Institute they need not fear imposition. The Keeley remedies will cure inebriety, all kinds of drug using, the tobacco habit and neurasthenia; they are never administered in hospitals and no patients are treated at Keeley Institutes for other than the above named diseases.

THE LESLIE E. KEELEY CO.,
Dwight, Illinois.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE, at Greensboro, N. C., is the only one in this State, and all representations that there is in this State any cure that is identical with or the same as the Keeley Double Chloride of Gold Cure, are malicious, false and made for the purpose of deceiving. We learn with indignant regret that such claim is being made, and feeling that if it be hurtful to us it will prove even more disastrous to those who are deceived thereby, we sound this note of warning.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE,
Greensboro, N. C.

Joseph Bonaparte.

Joseph Bonaparte fled to America after the hundred days and bought a home in Philadelphia, where he lived in winter, and a mansion in New Jersey, where he passed his summers. He was much liked in this country, but could not make up his mind to stay here, so returned to Europe, hoping to profit by the changes of government in France. He was always disappointed and found himself an unwelcome guest in every country save England. He finally secured permission to live in Italy and died in Florence in 1844.

Wilmington Evidence for Wilmington People

A RETIRED BAPTIST MINISTER

Of Wilmington Tells His Experience With a Dyspepsia Cure That Cured Him.

Dyspepsia is not confined to any walk of life; even the most upright and those who have devoted their lives to the betterment of humanity like this retired minister, have it.

But the cure operates on all alike, good and bad, rich and poor, it makes no difference to the tablets. We give you the Rev. M. Bryant's letter to us.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth street, New York.

Gentlemen:

I cannot speak too strongly in praise of Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets. I got a bottle of these tablets at Dr. Green's store about a month ago and since I began using this medicine I have noticed the most marked improvement in my health. I have been subject to severe attacks of indigestion for about two years and have tried most every remedy I heard of. Everything I ate seemed to distress me; my appetite was very poor and I suffered greatly from dizziness and fainting. I think I used to have the worst headaches of anybody that ever lived. I can truthfully say that after taking three bottles of Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets I am entirely relieved of all my old troubles and shall take pleasure in speaking to my friends about this splendid remedy.

REV. M. BRYANT,
17 Princess Street,
Wilmington, N. C.

A REVELATION TO A WILMINGTON ENGINEER.

That is What Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets Prove Themselves to be to Stomach Sufferers.

Any long standing stomach disturbance may be relieved if ordinary rules regarding proper diet and hygienic surroundings are observed. The muscular coats of the stomach need gentle stimulation, since they have contracted the lazy habit of performing their work too slowly or not at all. The nerves likewise lack the proper stimulus. Both the muscular coats and nerves of the stomach can be made active again and in a permanent way, by taking regularly Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets.

Mr. Nick Morrison, Third and Dawson streets, says:

"Recently I procured a bottle of Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets at Dr. Green's Drug Store and have given them a good trial and must say that they have benefitted me wonderfully. I do not think there is any medicine their equal for stomach disturbances. They took hold of my case at once, in fact so much so, that they have entirely cured me. They were truly a revelation for I could not have believed that there was anything that could do what your remedy has done. I speak of your tablets wherever I go and always shall, for I think a good thing should always be exhorted."

Dr. Richard's Dyspepsia Tablets 50 cents a bottle.

Dr. Richard's Laxocomfits, 25 cents a bottle.

ONE OF WILMINGTON'S CARPENTERS TELLS OF HIS CURE.

Dyspepsia and indigestion not only attacks those of sedentary occupations, but also those engaged in the active pursuits of life, and these attacks seem as bad in one case as the other. The cure, however, operates successfully under all conditions as the following illustrates:

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth St., New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

A friend who knew how I suffered from dyspepsia went to Dr. Green's drug store four or five weeks ago and got me a bottle of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets. I started taking them with little or no faith, for I had tried many medicines before without success; but it is a fact that my health began to improve almost at once.

And, mind you, I was greatly troubled with sour stomach, and there were very few things that agreed with me at all. I also suffered much from constipation and had to use cathartics with great frequency.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets have made my troubles disappear and I am feeling better. The constipation and bowel trouble has also been relieved with the use of the little yellow pills that come with the tablets.

WASHINGTON MC NIEL,
214 Walnut Street, Wilmington, N. C.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets 50 cents a bottle.

Dr. Richards' Laxocomfits 25 cents a bottle.

ONCE HAD HEADACHES THRICE A WEEK, NOW NONE AT ALL.

When you hear of any one suffering from headaches you can generally atribute them to some form of indigestion, for the stomach and the head are very closely connected through the nerves, and what affects one is felt directly by the other. Cure the stomach, and the head naturally and consistantly gets well of its aches and pains.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets are wonder workers in such cases.

Mrs. W. N. Smithson, Wilmington, N. C. says:

"I have taken two bottles of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets, which I got at Dr. Green's Drug Store. I had been a victim of nervous dyspepsia and at times thought surely I would lose my reason. I was continually suffering from nervous headaches and all the medicines I tried did me no good. I was discouraged. About two months ago your remedy was recommended to me and I gave it a trial with the result that I have not had a headache for a month, my appetite is good and that old nervous feeling is gone and I am feeling like my former self and enjoying the best of health. Your Tablets are wonder workers and I am glad of the opportunity of praising them and hope others so afflicted will give them a trial.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets 50 cents a bottle.

HUNGER AND FEAR OF FOOD

Hungry, consequently enfeebled, unless that hunger is appeased. This is the result of a dyspeptic condition where hunger is preferred to the distress and misery that come after eating.

You will get hungry but you need have no fear from eating a hearty meal to satisfy that hunger if you use Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets. They make good digestion wait on appetite and health on both.

Mrs. M. A. Futch, 13 Wooster street, Wilmington, N. C., says:

"I am very much pleased with the results obtained since using your remedy and am happy to state that I am now all right, enjoying my usual good health. I was so weak and in such a run-down condition that it was with difficulty that I kept up and around. I could scarcely eat anything although I was ravenously hungry all the time. I got a bottle at Dr. Green's Drug store and after a good, thorough trial, for I went at them with a determination to get well, I find them to be as represented. One splendid thing in their favor is, that you experience no bad after effects from them."

I have taken this bottle of these little tablets and have not had a sign of a headache for a month. My appetite is good; that old nervous feeling has gone and I am at last feeling like myself again thanks to Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets.

WILMINGTON DYSPEPTICS.

Sufferers from Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Constriction and Constipation have not only black Fridays but about every day in the seven is of that funeral hue. Consequently they do not enjoy life. They do not laugh very often. They are to be pitied and if possible helped.

The greatest help to them would be a cure. How life puts on a new color scheme to such victims is demonstrated by the use of Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablets. Read the following evidence.

Mary Edwards, 614 Harnet street, Wilmington, N. C.

"Since I began taking your tablets my improvement has been such that I feel as though I can claim a complete cure. Previous to taking your remedy I had no ambition for anything. My stomach had bothered me for years, finally getting in such a condition, that it was impossible for me to be able to partake of anything but the lightest of foods and even then it would cause me great distress. I had heard Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets spoken of by a resident of this town and I went to Dr. Green's Drug store and procured a package and have since been taking them regularly. I honestly think them the best tablets for the stomach troubles of all kinds and sincerely recommend their use."

THREE BOTTLES AND WHAT THEY DID FOR A VETINARY OF WILMINGTON.

The price of three bottles at Dr. Green's is $1.50 but the investment may be less if you buy one at a time, for they are mighty powerful curers of all stomach troubles as Verterinary J. D. Sidbury discovered, for he wirtes as follows:

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth street, New York.

Gentlemen:

"I cannot speak too strongly in praise of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets. About a month ago I got one bottle of these tablets at Dr. Green's Drug store, and as soon as I began using them, I noticed a marked improvement in my health. For almost two years I had been subject to frequent severe attacks of indigestion and had tried many remedies both in liquid and tablet form. My appetite was poor; felt distressed after eating, and had dizzy and fainting spells. I can honestly say that after taking only three bottles of your remedy, I am entirely cured of all my old troubles and shall deem it a pleasure to speak to all my friends about this splendid remedy. I thank you very much for all the good they have done me and wish you much success in this locality."

WORDS FITLY SPOKEN

When the Stomach is Out of Order the Mind, Body and Heart are Also Out of Order.

And life is not at its happiest and best. So much depends on a body free from dyspepsia and indigestion. Those who suffer know best the joy of a relief and the happiness of a what Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets did is well worth a perusal. It is home evidence right here in Wilmington, perhaps you personally know the lady.

NO MORE TIRED STOMACH.

As the body and mind fret from overwork and their operations lose easy action, so it is with a stomach that is overworked.

Rest alone restores normal conditions. But where can a dyspeptic find rest?

That alone gives rest which does the stomach's work. Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets are the scientific cally discovered remedy that restores strength to a tired stomach by relieving it of the burden of strained conditions and thus enabling it to regain its wanted actions.

A case in point is the following:

Mrs. Mary Speight, 1005 North Seventh street, Wilmington, N. C., has found out the virtues contained in this remedy. Read what she says in the following statement:

"I have come to the conclusion that Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets are a never-failing remedy for stomach trouble. I have taken them with great success, as have several of my friends also, and for this reason, I make the claim as set forth above. They have had a wonderful effect upon my whole system and have cured me when other remedies failed. I am glad of the day when I learned that I could procure them at Green's Drug store. I shall never miss an opportunity of praising their merits."

DYSPEPSIA'S DISTRESS.

How forlorn and useless one's life seems when the stomach refuses to digest, and dread dyspepsia with all its evil train of nerve disorders headache and heart palpitation, has seized you in its grasp. To restore such a stomach to its normal powers of health digestion is the peculiar, positive action of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets.

Cures without number attest the use of these Tablets, one of which is here given from your own home city.

Mrs. A. C. Jones, Wilmington, N. C., says:

"The condition of my health was such that I actually lost all ambition and cared for nothing. I suffered very much from dyspepsia and indigestion; I became very thin; could not eat, although hungry all the time, and I was hardly able to work. I heard of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets being on sale at Green's Drug store, and made up my mind to give them a trial, which I did. This was about two months ago. I have taken several bottles of your tablets and state that I am not now a well man and wish to thank you personally for all the good they have done. I endorse them as the best tablets before the public today for all stomach troubles and would ask all those afflicted to give them a trial and judge for themselves."

CHRONIC CASE CURED.

It is easy enough to be pleasant when life goes on like a song, but life's songs are all dirges to a chronic dyspeptic.

Talk is cheap, the facts alone satisfy such conditions. Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets are the vital facts of cure in such cases, and the proofs lie right in your own city as the following illustrates:

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth street, New York.

Gentlemen:

"I suffered from chronic dyspesia for ten years and finally got so that I had to live almost entirely on cereals, for I could hardly digest anything else. I was losing flesh every day and knew that I could not live unless I could get relief soon. The simplest work about the house would exhaust me and any slight excitement would make my heart beat like mad. At times I got so dizzy that I had to take hold of a chair to keep from falling.

"I went to Green's drug store some weeks ago, got a bottle of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets and began taking them. With the continued use of these tablets I am improving so rapidly that I am actually astonished that such a think could be possible, if I did not see it happen in my own case."

EXHAUSTED BY CHRONIC DYSPEPSIA VITALIZED BY A TRUE AND TRIED REMEDY.

Dyspepsia says life's energies are not alone of the body, but also of the mind. If the faculties and the vitality are enfeebled by the inroads of this evil malady, exhaustion soon follows effort. A condition like unto this needs radical treatment that will strike at the root of the disorder. What quick power and might to cure such cases is possessed by Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets, the following illustrates:

Miss Bryant, 17 Princess street, Wilmington, N. C., says:

"If this did not happen in my case, I would not believe it possible. I had been a long sufferer from dyspepsia; could not digest anything; lived entirely on cereals; was losing flesh daily; the simplest work completely exhausted me and the least excitement brought on palpitation of the heart and I would become very faint and dizzy. I thought I must surely die unless I got relief. Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets were recommended very highly and I obtained a package of them at Green's Drug store. I began with them at once and the improvement has been very rapid. They have done a world of good for me and have thoroughly driven away all those annoying sensations. I only wish I had heard of your remedy before, as I feel sure I would have been enjoying good health long ago. I recommend them as the best I have ever taken and wish you great success with them."

or the instruments ceased for a moment, then they struck up "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

"Hello!" cried Katherine. "Can your band play Sousa?"

"I should say we could," boasted the lieutenant, "and we can play his music in a way to give some hints to Mr. Sousa's own musicians."

"To beat the band, eh—Sousa's band?" rejoined Katherine, dropping into slang.

"Exactly," smiled the lieutenant. "And now, young ladies, will you excuse me for a few moments? This musical selection means that your secretary of the navy is on the waters, and I must be in my place with the rest of the officers to receive him and his staff with all ceremony. Please promise you will not leave this spot till I return. I implore you!"

"Better put the bluejacket on guard over us," laughed Katherine.

"By Jove, a very good idea!"

Dorothy saw all levity depart from his face, giving way to a look of sternness and command. Although he was engaged in a joke, the subordinate must see no sign of fooling in his countenance. He said a sharp word to a bluejacket, who nimbly sprang to the end of the settee, raised his hand in salute and stiffened himself to an automaton. Then the girls saw the tall figure of the lieutenant wending its way to the spot where the commander stood.

"I say, Dorothy, we're prisoners. I wonder what this Johnny would do if we attempted to fly. Isn't the lieutenant sumptuous?"

"He seems a very agreeable person," murmured Dorothy.

"Agreeable! Why, he's splendid! I tell you, Dorothy, I'm going to have the first dance with him. I'm the eldest. He's big enough to divide between two small girls like us, you know."

"I don't intend to dance," said Dorothy.

"Nonsense! You're not going to sit here all night with nobody to speak to. I'll ask the lieutenant to bring you a man. He'll take two or three bluejackets and capture anybody you want."

"Katherine," said Dorothy, almost as severely as if it were the elder sister who spoke, "if you say anything like that I'll go back to the house."

"You can't get back. I'll appeal to the guard. I'll have you locked up if you don't behave yourself."

"You should behave yourself. Really, Katherine, you must be careful what you say or you'll make me feel very unhappy."

Katherine caught her by the elbow and gave it an affectionate little squeeze.

"Don't be frightened, Miss Propriety, I wouldn't make you unhappy for the world. But surely you're going to dance?"

Dorothy shook her head.

"Some other time. Not tonight. There are too many people here. I shouldn't enjoy it, and—there are other reasons. This is all so new and strange to me—these brilliant men and beautiful women, the lights, the music, everything—it is as if I had stepped into another world, something I had read about or perhaps dreamed about and never expected to see."

"Why, you dear girl, I'm not going to dance either, then."

"Oh, yes, you will, Katherine; you must."

"I couldn't be so selfish as to leave you here all alone."

"It isn't selfish at all, Katherine. I shall enjoy myself completely here. I don't really wish to talk to any one, but simply to enjoy my dream, with just a little fear at the bottom of my heart that I shall suddenly wake up, rubbing my eyes, in the sewing room."

Katherine pinched her.

"Now are you awake?"

Dorothy smiled, still dreaming.

"Hello!" cried Katherine, with renewed animation. "They've got the secretary safe aboard the lugger, and they seem to be clearing the decks for action. Here is my dear lieutenant returning; tall even among tall men. Look at him. He's in a great hurry, yet so polite, and doesn't want to bump against anybody. And now, Dorothy, don't you be afraid. I shall prove a perfect model of diffidence. You will be proud of me when you learn with what timidity I pronounce prunes and prism. I think I must languish a little at him. I don't know quite how it's done, but in old English novels the girls always languished, and perhaps an Englishman expects a little languishment in his. I wonder if he comes of a noble family. If he doesn't, I don't think I'll languish very much. Still what matters the pomp of pageantry and pride of race—isn't that the way the poem runs? I love our dear little lieutenant for himself alone, and I think I will have just one dance with him at least."

Drummond had captured a camp stool somewhere, and this he placed at right angles to the settee, so that he might face the two girls and yet not interrupt their view. The sailor on guard once more faded away, and the band now struck up the music of the dance.

"Well," cried Drummond cheerfully, "I've got everything settled. I've received the secretary of the navy, our captain is to dance with his wife, and the secretary is Lady Angela's partner. There they go."

For a few minutes the young people watched the dance, then the lieutenant said:

"Ladies, I am disappointed that you have not complimented our electrical display."

"I am sure it's very nice indeed and most ingenious," declared Dorothy, speaking for the first time that evening to the officer, but Katherine, whose little foot was tapping the deck to the dance music, tossed her head and declared nonchalantly that it was all very well as a British effort at illumination but she begged the young man to remember that America was the home of electricity.

"Where would you have been if it were not for Edison?"

"I suppose," said the lieutenant cheerfully, "that we should have been where Moses was when the candle went out—in the dark."

"You might have had torches," said Dorothy. "My friend forgets she was wishing the sailors held torches on that suspended stairway up the ship's side."

"I meant electric torches, Edison torches, of course."

Katherine was displeased at the outlook. She was extremely fond of dancing, and here this complacent young man had planted himself down on a camp stool to talk of electricity.

"Miss Kempt, I am sorry that you are disappointed at our display. Your slight upon British electrical engineering leaves us unscathed, because this has been done by a foreign mechanic, whom I wish to present to you."

"Oh, indeed!" said Katherine, rather in the usual tone of her elder sister. "I don't dance with mechanics, thank you."

She emphasized the light fantastic word, but the lieutenant did not take the hint. He merely laughed again in an exasperatingly good natured way and said:

"Lady Angela is going to be Jack Lamont's partner for the next waltz."

"Oh," said Katherine loftily, "Lady Angela may dance with any blacksmith that pleases her, but I don't. I'm taking it for granted that Jack Lamont is your electrical tinsmith."

"Yes, he is, and I think him by all odds the finest fellow aboard this ship. It's quite likely you have read about his sister. She is a year older than Jack, very beautiful, cultured, everything that a grande dame should be, yet she has given away her huge estate to the peasantry and works with them in the fields, living as they do and faring as they do. There was an article about her in one of the French reviews not long ago. She is called the Princess Natalia."

"The Princess Natalia!" echoed Katherine, turning her face toward the young man. "How can Princess Natalia be a sister of Jack Lamont? Did she marry some old prince and take to the fields in disgust?"

"Oh, no. Jack Lamont is a Russian. He is called Prince Ivan Lermontoff when he's at home, but we call him Jack Lamont for short. He's going to help me on the Russian business I told you of."

"What Russian business?" asked Katherine. "I don't remember your speaking of it."

Dorothy went white, edged a little way from her friend, while her widening eyes flashed a warning at the lieutenant, who, too late, remembered that this conversation on Russia had taken place during the walk from the bank. The young man coughed slightly behind his open hand, reddened and stammered:

"Oh, I thought I had told you. Didn't I mention the prince to you as we were coming here?"

"Not that I recollect," said Katherine. "Is he a real, genuine prince—a right down regular, regular, regular, royal prince?"

"I don't know about the royalty, but he's a prince in good standing in his own land, and he is also an excellent blacksmith." The lieutenant chuckled a little. "He and his sister have both been touched a good deal by Tolstoian doctrine. Jack is the most wonderful inventor, I think, that is at present on the earth, Edison notwithstanding. Why, he is just now engaged on a scheme by which he can float houses from the mountains here down to New York. Float them—pipe line them would perhaps be a better term. You know they have pipe lines to carry petroleum. Very well. Jack has a solution that dissolves stone as white sugar dissolves in tea, and he believes he can run the fluid from the quarries to where building is going on. It seems that he then puts this liquid into molds, and there you have the stone again. I don't understand the process myself, but Jack tells me it's marvelously cheap and marvelously effective. He picked up the idea from nature one time when he and I were on our vacation at Detroit."

"Detroit, Mich.?"

"The Detroit river."

"Well, that runs between Michigan and Canada."

"No, no; this is in France. I believe the real name of the river is the Tarn. There's a gorge called Detroit—the strait, you know. Wonderful place—tremendous chasm. You go down in a boat, and all the tributary rivers pour into the main stream like jets from the nozzle of a hose. They tell me this is caused by the rain percolating through the dead leaves on the surface of the ground far above, and thus the water becomes saturated with carbonic acid gas and so dissolves the limestone until the granite is reached, and the granite forms the bed of these underground rivers. It all seemed to me very wonderful, but it struck Jack on his scientific side, and he has been experimenting ever since. He says he'll be able to build a city with a hose next year."

"Where does he live?"

"On the cruiser just at present. I was instrumental in getting him signed on as John Lamont, and he passed without question. No wonder, for he has scientific degrees from all sorts of German universities, from Oxford and one or two institutions in the States. When at home he lives in St. Petersburg."

"Has he a palace there?"

Drummond laughed.

"He's got a blacksmith shop, with two rooms above, and I'm going to stop with him for a few months as soon as I get my leave. When the cruiser reaches England we pay off, and I expect to have nothing to do for six months, so Jack and I will make for St. Petersburg."

"Why do you call him Lamont? Is it taken from his real name of what-d'ye-call-it-off?"

"Lermontoff? Yes. The Czar Demetrius some time about the beginning of the seventeenth century established a Scottish guard, just as Louis XI. did in France 200 years before, and there came over from Scotland Lamonts, Carmichaels, Buchanans and others, on whom were bestowed titles and estates. Prince Ivan Lermontoff is a descendant of the original Lamont, who was an officer in the Scottish guard of Russia."

"What Russian business?" asked Katherine.

"So he is really a Scotchman?"

"That's what I tell him when he annoys me, as I am by way of being a Scotchman myself. Ah, the waltz is ended. Will you excuse me a moment while I fetch his highness?"

Dorothy inclined her head, and Katherine fairly beamed permission.

"Oh, Dorothy," she exclaimed when the lieutenant was out of hearing, "think of it—a real prince, and my ambition has never risen higher than a paltry count or some plebeian of that sort. He's mine, Dorothy; I found him first."

"I thought you had appropriated the lieutenant?"

"What are lieutenants to me? The proud daughter of a captain, retired, cannot stoop to a mere lieutenant."

"You wouldn't have to stoop far, Kate, with so tall a man as Mr. Drummond."

"You are beginning to take notice, aren't you, Dot? But I bestow the lieutenant freely upon you, because I'm going to dance with the prince, even if I have to ask him myself.

"She'll toddle away, as all aver,
With the lord high executioner.

Ah, here they come! Isn't he perfectly splendid? Look at his beard! Just

"Ah, here they come!"

the color of a brand new twenty dollar gold piece. See that broad ribbon diagonally across him. I wonder what it means? And gaze at those scintillating orders on his breast. Good gracious me, isn't he splendid?"

"Yes, for a blacksmith. I wonder if he beat those stars out on his anvil. He isn't nearly so tall as Lieutenant Drummond."

"Dorothy, I'll not allow you to disparage my prince. How can you be so disagreeable? I thought from the very first that Lieutenant Drummond was too tall. If the prince expects me to call him 'your highness,' he'll be disappointed."

"You are quite right, Kate. The term would suit the lieutenant better."

"Dorothy, I believe you're jealous."

"Oh, no; I'm not!" said Dorothy, shaking her head and laughing, and then, "Hush!" she added as Katherine was about to speak again.

The next moment the young men stood before them, and, introductions being soberly performed, the prince lost no time in begging Katherine to favor him with a dance, to which request the young woman was graciously pleased to accede without, however, exhibiting too much haste about her acceptance, and so they walked off together.

REPEATS DETAILS OF HIS CRIMES

Harry Orchard Sticks to His Confession of Murdering Eighteen People.

VILLAIN NEVER WINCES

Haywood's Attorneys Subject Him to Grilling Cross-Examination, But It Only Brings Out More of His Awful Crimes.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Boise, Idaho., June 8.—Cross-examination of Harry Orchard, by his own confession the slayer of 18 men with bullet and bomb, is likely to last through Monday and Tuesday of next week and possibly longer. Orchard has now been on the stand for 14 hours. In that time he told a horrible tale of crime that spread over the last 11 years of his life, the first 30 years being the common place story of a Canadian farm hand. But, beginning with 1897, he unfolded a career in which to use the language of the leading counsel for the state "assassination was a trade and murder a means of livelihood."

Orchard spared no incident of his more recent life, under the questioning of the State, that might prove to the jury his readiness to slaghter for low wage, and how indifferent he had been as to the number or condition of his victims. The story brought out by the State was, how ever, merely a synopsis of the play whose acts cover the years since 1899. In every act the climax sent a shudder through a crowded court room.

Under cross-examination by E. F. Richardson, counsel for W. D. Haywood, Orchard has so far developed this series of tragedies up to the year 1904. Three more years and many murders are yet to be analyzed. For purposes of its own, not so far revealed, the defense is determined that Orchard shall retell his life story to the most diabolical or the most squalid detail before the men who are to pass on the question whether W. D. Haywood is guilty of hiring Orchard to murder former Governor Frank Steunenberg, at Caldwell, Idaho, on December 30, 1905.

Slowly but surely the defense is developing the lines by which it hopes to break down the story of Harry Orchard so far as it affects Haywood. If it is possible to heap further obloquy on the witness they have done so by proving him capable of petty crimes.

By his own admission, Orchard is a bigamist, a thief, a liar and an incendiary. He has played the traitor to his employers. He has deserted two wives and his children. All of these offenses he has been forced to confess, but under a gruelling examination by Richardson, he has stuck to hisstory and given chapter and verse.

By questions the defense has plainly indicated the intention to prove that Orchard was the hired agent of the mineowners who harassed by the Western Federation of Miners and determined to wipe union labor from the mines of Idaho and Colorado, planned assassination, trainwrecks, and mine explosions that could be laid to the door of the Federation and keep militia on the ground while nonunion men worked the mines.

It has been shown under the cross-examination that Orchard trafficked with railroad detectives in the mining region of Cripple Creek during the great strike there, while almost at the same time he was in the confidence of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners. Led on by Mr. Richardson, Orchard has stated that he was hired by Moyer, president of the Fed eration, to act as guard against alleged thugs, said to be hired by the mine owners to attack and terrorize Moyer.

Some half a dozen State's witnesses will be called to deny or confirm Orchard's assertions. Already two men accused of complicity in the plots, he says, were hatched with the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners, have been called to the stand in open court. Orchard has identified them as the men he named and William Easterly and Owney Barnes have openly sneered at the testimony. During session after session since Orchard went on the stand a crowd has sought admission. The court room is filled long before the sheriff has called the court to order, and hundreds are sent away. Haywood has six lawyers, while the State has four. Haywood's wife, mother, sister and two daughters sit close behind him. The prisoner watches every detail, consults his counsel continually and is always alert, seldom showing the slightest sign of emotion.

Between counsel for the State and the defense feeling is apparent. Every session there comes a quick exchange of sharp words. At times the situation becomes intense. J. H. Hawley, senior counsel for the State, is quick at anger and downright in his challenges. United States Senator Borah, his colleague, is keen, quick of tongue, and sarcastic. Richardson, for the defense, has a resonant voice that rises in anger, and impatient of interruption he frequently flings a sneer at the counsel or thunders his objections when he thinks an interruption out of place. Clarence Darrow sits beside him as watchful as a cat. Slow of action and of speech, he seldom takes part in the passages and is ever ready to smooth the ruffled feelings of each side.

Judge Fremont Woods is, perhaps, the most alert of the principals in the case. Not a word or movement escapes him. He is prompt in decision and permits no infringements of the dignity of the court.

But the coolest man in the court is Orchard. Under Richardson's grilling he has seldom changed the pitch of his voice, in which he told his awful story. His answers come without hesitation. So far he has not made any material contradiction. From time to time he has actually corrected the record itself when his answers of the day before have been read and the transcription shows an error. At times his reply to an assertion made by Richardson is positive in the extreme. "I made no such statement," or "I said nothing of the kind," is a frequent answer; and when he finds some statement not to his satisfaction he will change it, always preceeding the change with: "I beg your pardon, sir; but I would like to change that answer."

At the close of Orchard's cross examination, the State will take him in hand for re-direct questioning. Then will come the renewed cross-examination. It seems hardly possible that he will be dismissed before the end of next week. He may be recalled afterwards, as the case develops. The warden at the penitentiary says that Orchard aided his first wife, whom he or strain. He eats well and speaks without particular emotion of the events of the day. One of the interesting features of today's examination was the development of the fact that Orchard aids his first wife, whom he deserted in Canada in 1897 to run away with another man's wife. He testified that he had sold a locket and chain and some of the property for something like $115, the greater part of which he had sent to his wife. This property aside from the locket and chain, consisted of a fishing rod, a gun and a revolver, together with some other little things. He said the warden had disposed of these for him with the understanding that the person buying them could have them "after the trial."

Orchard said that the warden told him that he had received part of this money from Governor Gooding. It is possible that the Governor may be called as a witness to explain the transaction.

MRS. KARL HAU SUICIDE.

Wife of George Washington University Professor Drowned Herself.

(By Cable to the Morning Star.)

Karlsruhe, Germany, June 8.—Karl Hau, professor of Roman law in the George Washington University, Washington, D. C., who is in prison here, charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Frau Molliter, was visited by the governor of the prison today and informed that his wife had committed suicide by drowning in a lake near Pfaeffikon, Switzerland. The governor had quite a lengthy conversation with the professor, which led to a report that he had confessed that he had murdered his wife's mother, which he has strenuously denied. The State's attorney subsequently denied the report that Hau had made a confession.

Mrs. Hau came to Karlsruhe two days ago and had a long talk with her husband. She left the prison in a state of the utmost depression and went back to the village of Pfaeffikon. On arriving there Mrs. Hau went direct to a bathing establishment on the small lake and requested to be given a separate dressing room. The attendants later saw her swimming out in the lake, but soon afterwards they observed that she was no longer moving. A boatman rowed out to the spot and brought the body ashore, where a physician who was hurriedly sent for tried in vain to resuscitate the unfortunate woman. A long farewell letter was found in her clothing in which she declared it was impossible for her to any longer bear the sorrow of living apart from her husband, notwithstanding the charge brought against him, but death was bitter for her, owing to her child. A considerable sum of money was also found in Mrs. Hau's clothing.

CLOUD BURST DESTROYS HAMLET

Twenty-One People Missing From Small Town in Southern Kentucky.

FLOOD SWEPT VILLAGE AWAY

Death and Destruction By Tornadoes in Illinois, Indiana and Tennessee.

People Crushed to Death By Demolished Houses.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Louisville, Ky., June 8.—Twenty-one persons dead, the village devastated and several thousand acres of growing crops ruined, are the havoc wrought by a cloud burst that caused Big Creek to submerge Gradyville, Ky., and vicinity last night. All the dead are residents of Gradyville, and although reports are meagre it is believed that no further fatalities will be reported from the surrounding country.

The dead:

Mrs. L. C. Nell, wife of State Senator Nell and her four children; Mrs. Lum B. Hill and one child; Mrs. Carl Wilmore, her daughter and her grand daughter; Paul Wilson; Mrs. Hartfield Moss and her six children; Mrs. J. W. Keltner, and one child; Miss Mary Moss.

The disaster was due to the eratic behavor of the creek, which was al ready swollen by recent rains. When the cloud burst preciptated three inches of rain in an hour on Gradyville and vicinity, the creek leaped from its bed and took a new course with the force of a tidal wave.

Inhabitants of Gradyville were nearly all in bed when the foaming waters struck the town, carrying away six residences, a mill and a number of small houses. Nearly all the victims were drowned, but four were crushed by the collapse of dwellings. State Senator Nell, who is a physician, owes his escape from the fate that overtook his family to the fact that he was several miles away in the hills, sitting up with a patient. When the news of the disaster eached Columbia, Ky., then earest town of any size, several hundred citizens departed for the scene with wrecking appliances, food and clothing. All the physicians available went along. They found the residents of the devastated village dazed and helpless, but by nightfall, all the relief possible had been afforded.

Several persons were injured but none of these will die. Gradyville is a village of 175 inhabitants, in Adair county, six miles from Columbia and 18 miles from the nearest railroad station.

The storm began about 10 o'clock last night and increased in intensity until half past 12 when its height was reached. The cloud burst turned Big Creek into a torrent and quickly overflowed its banks, pouring much water down upon Grandyville.

Nearly every house in the town was washed away and those who met death were drowned or crushed to death in their houses as they were torn from their foundations.

Columbia was telephoned for assistance and a large number of citizens left that place at once, but owing to the condition of the roads, it will require some time to make the trip. Every stream in the vicinity is out of its bounds. All bridges in this vicinity were washed away and thousands of acres of corn ruined.

Terrible Tornadoes.

Chicago, June 8.—Dispatches from various places in Southern Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky tell of severe storms of tornado severity which have caused some loss of life and the destruction of much property. Early today the town of New Minden, Ills., 25 miles southeast of St. Louis, was visited by a tornado which killed four persons and injured a score of others.

Duquoin, Ills., was also visited last night by the same storm that caused the destruction of York. A number of houses were blown down but no lives were lost.

Four Killed in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., June 8.—A tornado swept over New Minden, seven miles north of this city last night, killing four persons and severely injuring several others. A score were bruised by debris. A number of houses were demolished. The dead: Mrs. Henry Weihe and two children; a child of Carl Steumyer.

The storm struck the northern portion of the town and most of the houses destroyed were cottages. The German Lutheran church was badly damaged, the roof being blown off. The church bell was hurled through the large pipe organ below, badly damaging it. The parochial school adjoining the church was demolished. The tornado continued and levelled about seven farm houses. The Wiehe house in which the four persons were killed was about the last.

Death Dealt in Indiana.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 8.—Meagre details from West York, Ills., tell of a destructive tornado which visited the village of York, located on the Wabash river, Southwest of this city, last night. The known dead: Henry Rook, aged 50 found crushed to death in his garden; Mrs. Malinda Pinkston, aged 45. Members of the families of the two victims were also more or less injured.

A dispatch from West York today stated that owing to wires being down and bridges washed away communication was impossible. It was further stated that forty or fifty houses had been demolished.

Reports from points south of here in Indiana say that the storm was severe and several inches of rain followed, doing big damage.
